

*The analysis considered core behavioral health providers including psychiatrists, pediatricians, psychologists, psychiatric nurses, social workers, marriage and family therapists, and professional counselors.

FINDINGS

RECOMMENDATIONS

Education and Training

1. The majority of behavioral health providers in Georgia are not currently trained in trauma-informed care. This finding is consistent with the national trend where only 10% of behavioral health providers are trained in trauma-informed care. This finding is consistent with the national trend where only 10% of behavioral health providers are trained in trauma-informed care.

